Yay for ME!!!

My illustrious place of employment has seen fit to send me to CFUNITED this year (after a graphic demonstration of the power of CF for handling a niggling extranet issue they'd been having).

Truth be told - there are very few in the company that actually KNOW what I do behind the scenes to make "miracles" occur. Even fewer realize the hours that my team and I spend troubleshooting, training, building, etc. So suffice it to say that I am ECSTATIC that they are sending me.

The last one I went to - CFUNITED05 - hooked me into a huge network of Jedi Masters and Product Evangelists and some of the most informative people I've ever had the pleasure of meeting in this industry. So stay tuned for many more entries in this category as I will be blogging my way through CFUNITED.

For those who don't know what CFUNITED is - it is the largest, ColdFusion Dedicated, conference held every year in Washington, DC. It is run every year by Teratech and sponsored by companies such as Adobe and ThinkGeek (easy to see where MY priorities lie).
